Beauty Boosters

* Thyroid and Health Function

The thyroid is the master gland of the metabolism. When its not functioning properly it can affect weight, mental outlook, body temperature and energy levels. The thickness of your skin is also dependent on thyroid function, When your thyroid is not functioning up to par, your body will attempt to conserve energy by redirecting it from non-essential areas, and directing efforts at repair and regeneration to those functions considered more essential. This is why the beauty of your skin are among the first to go when your thyroid gives out.

* Socialising

Forget the old saying, keeping your friends close and your enemies far from your mind will keep you looking tip-top. Make plenty of time for friends because research shows there are many health benefits gained by socializing and laughing with friends, Laughter is an endorphin trigger that reduces certain stress hormones and strengthens the immune system. A healthy body, along with a positive mental outlook, is very good indeed.

* Supplements

While the best way to get vitamins and minerals into you is by eating them, well, this is not always possible, Vitamins, minerals and herbs are catalysts for good health and can be taken in the form of supplements when your diet is lacking.

Once absorbed by the body, they go to work setting off a chain reaction in other parts of your body to produce necessary elements we need to function. And remember not to neglect the essential fatty acids, these provide tender, loving care for your skin,

Hyperoxygenate your tissues for a healthier appearance (Carboxytherapy)

Carboxytherapy is the injection of medical Carbon Dioxide gas just beneath the skins surface. We use it mainly for the treatment of facial, neck and décolletage tissue, It is fantastic for treating dark circles and can even help eye bags and jowls.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

All cells in our body convert oxygen you breathe in into carbon dioxide that you breathe out. When you body detects areas that have high levels of carbon dioxide (in your muscle when you run) it sends more blood into that area. When the blood cells detect carbon dioxide, they remove it and leave oxygen in its place. Blood cells then carry it to the lungs so you can breathe it out and breathe in more oxygen. By injecting small amounts of carbon dioxide we are tricking our skin into increasing the blood circulation and oxygen into the area. Dark eye circles have all been shown to involve poor blood circulation.

WHAT CAUSES DARK EYE CIRCLES?

Although sometimes caused by darkened pigment, or a hollow depression below the lower lids, the majority of cases are caused by poor circulation. By injecting a small amount of carbon dioxide gas just beneath the skin of the lower eyelid, circulation is increased and dark under-eye circles are markedly improved.

HOW LONG DOES THE PROCEDURE TAKE?

It only takes 5 minutes, with a little sting at the injection site. This is a no downtime procedure. The eyelids will feel puffy until the gas is absorbed over the next 5 to 10 minutes. A series of 2-6 treatments spaced one month apart is all that is required to achieve a good result.

SIDE EFFECTS?

The only real possible side effect is bruising at the injection site. This treatment has been used for year to facilitate endoscopic procedures of the abdomen,
